

The EPA has stated that the COVID-19 virus has not been detected in drinking-water supplies. Based on current evidence, the risk to water supplies is low. The EPA has established regulations with treatment requirements for public water systems that prevent waterborne pathogens such as viruses from contaminating drinking water. Coronavirus, which causes COVID-19, is a type of virus that is particularly susceptible to disinfection and standard treatment and disinfection are expected to be effective.